Healing Brady

Brady comes to rescue due to his owner's diagnosis of Alzheimer's. He is a special boy who is winning the hearts of many.

Upon taking Brady into rescue, we knew that he needed weight management, dental procedures, and a large fatty mass removed off of his right side. This mass sits right under his right front leg and extends all the way down his rib cage. All this was scheduled for the beginning of March after some weight could be taken off of him.

A couple days into rescue, his foster mom noted large amounts of blood during urination. He was immediately taken to the vet where a large stone was found in his bladder. Complications arose.

Once out of surgery he is resting in his foster home.

This 8 year old sweetie has incurred over $4,800 in vet bills; we appreciate any donations you can give.

Body Basics

Carrying extra pounds isn't just bad for humans, new research indicates dogs' lives may be significantly shorter if they're overweight.

The study, which evaluated data from more than 50,000 dogs across 12 of the most popular breeds, found that the life span of overweight dogs was up to 2.5 years shorter than that of normal-weight canines.

"We know that in people, there's a higher risk of mortality if they have obesity, so in many respects this is not surprising," said study author Dr. Alexander German a professor of small animal medicine at University of Liverpool in England.

Fun Fact: Dogs' ears are extremely expressive. There are more than a dozen separate muscles that control a dog's ear movements.

Doggie Did You Knows

We have received good feedback on the random facts shared in the newsletter, so here are some more about your best friend from ceasersway.com.

There's a reason your 2-year old and your pup get along so well: they speak the same language. Or at least, they likely understand roughly the same number of words and gestures — 250!

Dogs only have sweat glands in their paws. More specifically, they are found between their paw pads. That's why it can help to wet the bottom of their feet on a hot day, and it's also why dogs rely on panting as a means of cooling down.

Your dog can smell your feelings. Your pup can pick up on subtle changes in your scent, which can help him figure out how you are feeling. It's also likely how dogs can detect certain diseases or know that a household member is pregnant.

Your dog's whiskers help him "see" in the dark. It's not quite night-vision or a super power, but those whiskers pick up on even subtle changes in air currents, providing your pup with information about the size, shape, and speed of things nearby. This allows your dog to better sense approaching dangers or prey — even at night.
